BEAUTY.

"The wind passeth over it, and it is gone."
I saw a dew-drop, cold and clear, Dance on a myrtle spray;
Fair colors deck'd the lucid tear, Like those which bloom and disappear, When showers and sun beams play;
So cast athwart a glance severe,
And scor'd the pearl away.
High on a slender polish'd stem,
A fragrant lily grew:
On the pure petals many a gem Glitter'd, a native diadem Of healthy morning dew:
A blast of lingering winter came,
And snapp'd the stem in two.
Fairer than morning's early tear, Or lily's snowy bloom, Shines beauty in its vernal year;
Bright, sparkling, fascinating, clear, Gay, thoughtless of its doom!
Death breathes a sudden poison near,
And sweeps it to the tomb!

THE BIRTH OF BEAUTY AND LOVE.

Oh! woman! when supernal power First placed thy lovely form on earth, He gave thee beauty for thy dower,
And bade all nature hail thy birth.
Creation viewed thee with delight, Earth's verdure brightened at thy tread,
The heavens then glowed with purer light,
And chaos from thy presence fled!
The flowers in clustering union grew, Fragrant with sweets, in beauty rare;
Like orient pearls, with glittering dew, They graced thy brow, and bound thy hair.

The maiden rose, in rich perfume, Reigned sovereign o'er each lovely flower,
The peerless white, in beauty's bloom, She twined around thy peaceful bower.

But when the rose first met thy sight, Warmed by thy gaze, its modest hue Was lost in blushes deep and bright To meet thine eyes of black or blue!

And when thy lips the leaves had prest, Love was created in that hour,
And flew for shelter to thy breast, When first he left the parent bower.

ELEGANT EXTRACT.

There is something very attractive and pleasing in progress. It is agreeable to observe a stately edifice rising from the deep basis, and becoming a beautiful mansion. It is entertaining to see the rough outline of a picture filled and finished. It is striking in the garden to behold the tree renewing signs of life; to remark the expanding foliage, the opening bud, the lovely blossom, the swelling, coloring, ripening fruit. And where is the father, where is the mother, who has not sparkled with delight, while contemplating the child growing in stature; acquiring by degrees the use of its tender limbs; beginning to totter, and then to walk more firm; the pointing finger succeeded by the prattling tongue; curiosity awakened; reason dawning; new powers opening; the character forming. But nothing is to be compared with the progress of this building of God; these "trees of righteousness;" this process of "the new creature" from the hour of regeneration "unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the perfect fullness of Christ." And O what is it when we are the subjects too! The nearer we live to heaven, the more of its pure and sweet influence we shall enjoy. The way of life, narrow at the entrance, widens as we proceed.—It is the nature of habits to render their acts easy and delightful. There is little pleasure in religion, if there be no fervency; if there be no rigor in faith, no zeal in devotion, no life in duty, religion is without a soul; it is mere increase of inanimate virtue. What sensations of ecstasy, what prospects of assurance can such Christians expect?—In conversion, as in the alteration of an old edifice, we first demolish, and then only furnish us with rubbish and ruins, but afterwards we raise up an orderly, beautiful building, in which we are received and charmed.

What happiness arises from difficulties overcome, and labor crowned with success? What emotions can equal the joy of one, who, after the painful battle, "divides the spoil?"—but what can resemble the satisfaction of the Christian, who on successful exertion, gathers fresh glory, honor and immortality? The life of the active Christian is the labor of the bee, who all day long is flying from the flower to the hive; but all his business is confined to fragrance, and productive of sweets.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman now in Europe, to his friend in Boston, dated Berlin, April 18, 1817.

Freyburg is situated in Erzgebirge, (mineral mountains) which separate Saxony from Bohemia, and is the most considerable silver mine now worked in Europe, and is also very important as being the seat of the great mineralogical academy under the direction of Werner, the head of the so called Wernerian Geological system. In this place are 102 mines now worked, which produce principally silver, lead and cobalt. The ore is by no means rich compared with most that is worked in South America; but by economical management, it is made productive. The richest veins afford about five to six ounces of silver to 100 pounds of ore, and the poorest not more than one quarter as much.—The average annual product is 600,000 dollars, to gain which, five thousand miners are employed. Werner said, in answer to some queries I made about the advantage of working these mines, that while the government lost nothing by them, it was surely best to work them, as they employed so many hands, increased the existing specie capital of the Kingdom by the amount produced, and even if all this was expended, it was diffused among its own subjects. The process of amalgamation is here unique in its kind, being a combination of the chemical and mechanical, by which a great waste of quicksilver is prevented. It is by their economy in this article, that they are enabled to go on. Were the consumption of it a quarter so much as in America, the costs would be greater than the proceeds.

The average depth of mines now open, is from one sixth to one third of an English mile. The one I went into was about 1400 feet perpendicular descent, and as they have no means of going down or up, but by a common ladder, I found both operations somewhat difficult. As I was going thro' the first, I was quite disposed to doubt the truth of Virgil's "Facilis descensus," but when I came to "revocare gradum," I saw well enough wherein the "opus" and the "labor" lay. No ride in the most interesting country through which I have travelled, ever interested me half so much, as this visit to the subterranean regions. By the aid of the lamps suspended to our necks, we pursued our way thro' the narrow, dark, silver paved and silver arched streets, which led from mine to mine for at least two English miles. I must place the sensations which I then felt, among the most sublime I ever experienced. In one place were heard the thundering echoes of the machinery which serve to carry up the water, in another the rending and cleaving of the rocks as they are blown up by the powder, and others were so deep and distant, that we heard nothing but the reverberating sound of our voices and our footsteps.

Now the glitter of the most brilliant sky was reflected from innumerable crystals which hung over us, and now we penetrated into darkness so deep that our lamps scarcely afforded light enough to let us pass in safety.

I was quite charmed with Werner. I have scarce ever seen a more amiable man. His heart seems made up of charities. He conversed with me a long while on the subject of our Indians, and was shocked at the idea of exterminating them. He thinks they may be civilized and Christianized.

FRENCH SOCIETIES.

The French Societies are literally an evening at home. Almost every woman of condition in Paris, has a Society once or twice a week. Some ladies are "at home" every night, or rarely go out except to the court, to the opera, or to the theatres. During the soiree, visits are received and paid, as on other evenings, for the evening is the usual time for paying morning visits in France; and once admitted to their enjoyment, no further invitation is necessary. These little assemblies, given without expense and resorted to without form, present the state of Parisian society in its most favorable aspect. Neither vanity nor ostentation interfere with their ease and simplicity; there is no gambling, no full dress; the women go in demi toilette; and as, in Paris, illumination is very cheap, and the apartments always well lighted, the whole additional expense of the soiree is included in tea, or some slight refreshment, served a little before midnight. Society is therefore not a point of competition, but a source of genuine enjoyment. It never leads to ruinous extravagance—it is supported by no newspaper eulogies—awakens no rivalry, and gives no heart burnings; and the lady who entertains, does not estimate the pleasure of her party by the number of titles which fill her rooms, nor by the expensive rarities that crowd her supper table: for wit, pleasantry, and good conversation hold an uniform ascendancy over peers, and pine apples, chalked floors, and peas at a guinea per quart.

OFFICIAL PAPERS.

Selections from the documents transmitted to the House of Representatives of the United States by the President.

[CONCLUDED.]

OF AMELIA ISLAND.

Extract of a letter from captain John H. Elton, to the hon. B. W. Crowninshield, Secretary of the Navy, dated U. S. brig Saranac, Cumberland Sound, Sept. 26th, 1817.

"The patriotism of Amelia Island appears to be confined to privateering and plundering. General Aury has the command," &c.

Extracts from a letter from captain John H. Elton to the hon. B. W. Crowninshield, Secretary of the Navy, dated U. S. brig Saranac, Cumberland Sound, Oct. 10, 1817.

"I have detained a feluch, or small schooner that sailed from Fernandina, under a commission granted by general McGregor to one John Morrison, for two reasons; first, as a pirate for having captured an English schooner with regular papers, bound from Nassau to Barracoa, called the Brothers; the commission was granted to John Morrison a citizen of the United States, and who, during the cruise, resided at St. Mary's, in Georgia; and the commission was made use of by one Edmund Fenner, who likewise captured a Spanish schooner; both are detained for investigation. They have been out some time, and have received provision from some English and American vessels, they say, gratis. The crew consisted of 18, and I suppose they could not carry provisions for ten days. On the 6th instant I detained the schooner Hornet; she was commissioned by general McGregor 23d July last, John Smith commander. She cleared out from Philadelphia in August as the Traveller; she received her arms and men in the Delaware bay, near Lewistown. On the 6th or 7th September she, for the first time, assumed the name of Hornet, went off Cuba, made two prizes, the crew mutinied, and in that state was coming in."

"Until I get directions how to consider the island of Amelia, and the people bound to that place, it will be impossible to prevent either slaves or goods being smuggled."

"As most of the patriots there are one day an American citizen, and the next at Fernandina, it is easy for them and their agents to evade all the vigilance we are possessed of. One small Spanish vessel, a prize to a privateer, got into the port before we could board, with seventeen slaves. I would have taken her out immediately, but I considered it neutral ground, and that it was the wish of the government not to infringe—fearful of that error, our boats are generally sent out to board at sea."

Extract of a letter from captain John H. Elton, to the Secretary of the Navy, dated

U. S. brig Saranac, Cumberland Sound, Oct. 19, 1817.

"Day before yesterday I sent out to detain a Spanish slave vessel, prize to a Mexican privateer: the captain and owner came in to converse with me, and the officer, neglecting to leave any person in charge, the people from Fernandina went secretly off, and landed all the blacks on the outer part of the island."

Extract of a letter from captain John H. Elton, to the Secretary of the Navy, dated

U. S. brig Saranac, Cumberland Island, Nov. 15, 1817.

Sir—On the 9th instant I sent a boat out to board a vessel from sea. The officer had not been informed to take charge of her, until I had thoroughly overhauled her, if she was a slave vessel. He was at Savannah when the instructions were issued. He returned, and reported it as a slave vessel, prize to the Brutus privateer. I despatched a boat to bring her in for examination. The officer, acting sailing master M'Cloy, met her coming in, and, as it was dangerous to leave her to remain on his ears, to drop alongside. They pretended to give him a rope—they did not, but passed him—caught by a boat-tern. The prize master threatened to fire on him, if he attempted to board; and, when musketry was fired under his stern, it was returned. The alarm was given by the boat. I unfortunately was on Cumberland point, where only one gun was mounted, from which we fired two shot to bring her to. The first lieutenant fired three from the brig. Two of the five struck her, but she succeeded in getting into Fernandina. Although irritated at the insult, I did not conceive it correct to attempt force, to have her driven from neutral waters, but proceeded as I thought most correct; and the enclosed correspondence has passed between general Aury and myself. The true shot was fired at her when close to Amelia, but the officer assures me she was on the northern part of the channel when he attempted to board. It half the depth of water is allowed us, she was on our side. I have informed you that the channel over the bar was on their side; or to the southward of a direct line drawn between the islands to the sea. I have never been instructed on that head, but I really think they hold the island by too precarious a tenure, to be yet so tenacious of their rights. A verbal answer was returned, at first, to my application, that they would protect her. Not knowing how the United States wished to view these people, I did not think proper to attempt to destroy the establishment, but sent out lieutenant commandant E. R. M'Call, to bring back the privateer Jupiter, to remain as a pledge until I heard from government. It has excited considerable feeling, and no other privateers attempted to sail: the slave vessel was brought over last night, but everything but slaves, and a small quantity of rice, was taken from her, and she appeared in a very filthy state. The prize master was not sent, neither any of the prize crew. I have written for the former—whether he will be sent I cannot vouch. Yet, as retribution could so soon be had, if force was authorized, and wishing not to interrupt harmony, if it is wished by the United States, I have released the privateer Jupiter, and the High Flyer sailed immediately on a cruise.

A prior correspondence took place, as regarded captain Farnham. It was represented to me that he was a citizen, and only went there to trade. It appears he had been in the service of the patriots for some time. The application was, of course, dropped.

I shall send the slave vessel to Savannah for adjudication, and if the prize master is found, shall send him also. He is an old offender, by the name of Austin. The situation of Amelia is, by no means a quiet one. Those at present there act very strangely. There has been a French party and an English party—they have been in constant alarm of each other.—The French party is now trying as many of the English party as possible, and strangely are making a Botany Bay of the U. States, as you will perceive by the proclamation enclosed. So much discontent prevails, that I should not be surprised to see them engaged in civil war. The slave vessels that have hitherto entered Fernandina, I have no doubt have smuggled all their slaves to the U. States. Small boats are permitted to pass and repass; as they are rowed by slaves, they can smuggle one or two at a time without detection. Another mode of smuggling is, that the law makes no provision how to consider boats of less than 5 tons. I sent one of that description to the collector. She was filled with provisions and naval stores from Savannah to Amelia—she had no clearance—the law requires none; but from a passenger on board, I had no doubt, in my own mind, it was fit to fit out a former slave vessel as a privateer. She was released by the collector. Am I to stop arms, ammunition, etc. bound from the U. States to Fernandina, if not cleared as such? They term their boxes of merchandise very frequently, and sometimes have more than they clear out.

Extract of a letter from Thomas Wayne, Esq. purser on board the U. States brig Saranac, dated St. Mary's river, September 27, to Benjamin Bonans.

"On our arrival here, we found Gen. McGregor in command of Amelia Island. A few days afterwards he decamped, and embarked on board the privateer McGregor, formerly the St. Joseph. The command of the island devolved on Col. Irwin, an American, who was in a few days attacked by the Spaniards. After an engagement of 48 hours, which was all smoke, it terminated without the loss of a single life, & the Spaniards retreated."

"The noted Woodbine, of infamous memory, arrived here from Nassau, with a view, as was said, to join the patriots; but his friend, McGregor, having left the cause, he was disappointed, and embarked with McGregor, who sailed a few days since for Nassau, to commence some new expedition, which it is generally supposed will be to the Bay of Espiritu Santo, or Bay of Tampa, in lat. 28° 15' N. and lon. 70° 30' W. This is an extensive Bay, and capable of admitting ships of any size, contiguous to which are the finest lands in East Florida, which Woodbine pretends belong to him, by virtue of a grant from the Indians. He says, he has surveyed the whole of the Gulf of Mexico, and Tampa bay is the only place into which large ships can enter."

"The patriots of Amelia are a most heterogeneous set, consisting of all countries & languages, except Spanish Americans. Amongst them may be found, Americans, French, Irish, Scotch, English, Dutch, Germans, Haytiens, Portugais, etc. all come ostensibly to aid the cause of the patriots of South America; but their real motive is, no doubt, to prey upon whom they can. Should they continue in Amelia Island, the place will become a second Barrataria."

"At this time the government consists of Mons. Aury who is commander in chief of the naval and military forces; & Regles Hubbard, formerly high sheriff of N. York, is the civil governor."

"A number of prizes of considerable value, have been brought into Amelia by Aury's squadron."

"It appears to be the anxious wish of the inhabitants, of the opposite side of the river, to be under the American government, as they are not now secure from either party."

Extracts of letters from Robert M. Harrison, Esq. Consul of the United States at the Island of St. Thomas, to the Secretary of State.

St. Thomas, 20th April, 1817.

"The increasing number of American seamen, whose ill success in the privateers and pirates that infest these seas, induces them to relinquish those unprofitable pursuits, whenever an opportunity offers, and who almost universally swarm to this island to claim my protection and support, so that they daily almost surround my door, renders it again my duty to request instructions from the Department of State. I have not yet extended to such men any more than a partial assistance, though many of them are in the greatest possible distress, considering that the expenditure of such large sums of money might be considered as advancing beyond the bounds of my duty. It is much to be regretted that the disappointment sustained by so great a number of our seamen should not be sufficient to deter others from embarking in such enterprises."

St. Thomas, 30th May, 1817.

"Numbers of American vessels, originally bound to the Spanish Main where their cargoes could have been disposed of to great advantage, have been deterred from a prosecution of their voyage, from a dread of the piratical cruizers that infest those seas, and have been actually obliged to sacrifice their property here, whilst English vessels prosecute the trade in perfect safety, merely from the circumstance of there being a few British vessels of war in the West India seas.—The presence of one of our smallest armed vessels would completely awe those marauders, and enable our merchant vessels to prosecute a legal trade in safety. Her presence (the Boxer) in this neighborhood would be attended with the most salutary effects."

THE INDIANS.

We have seen a letter from Hartford, dated the 7th instant, which confirms the intelligence given in the Republican of Monday, of the murder of lieutenant Scott and the men under his command by the Indians. It appears more lives were lost than were mentioned in the account—lieutenant Scott, 44 men, 10 women, and 8 children, were killed, making in all 58. The clothing for the 4th regiment, under the guard of Scott, was also taken off by the savages.

The regiment of militia under colonel Marshall paraded on the south common yesterday afternoon, when a detachment of 219 was made by draft. The object of the force is not precisely known, but generally supposed to be St. Mary's, or the Floridian frontier.

EXPATRIATION.

Mr. Robertson, of Louisiana, a member of the House of Representatives of the United States, has introduced a resolution into that house, the object of which seems to be to induce Congress to declare, that the people of this country have a right to expatriate themselves. The doctrine of perpetual allegiance has always appeared to trouble our warmest blooded politicians, for what particular reason they may best be able to say. We think, notwithstanding, that Mr. Robertson will find some difficulty before he carries his motion into complete effect.

In the first place, we would enquire, what authority have Congress thus to release the inhabitants of this country, even allowing that there is nothing in the idea of natural allegiance? If Congress can act at all, they can only release men from the obligations they are under to the national government. They have no power to sever the ties which bind men to the state governments; and there is the spot, if any where, that we should naturally expect to find natural allegiance. From the peculiar form and nature of our national government, it may be questioned whether there is, strictly speaking, any such thing as natural allegiance towards that government, it being formed, essentially, of a confederation of separate and distinct states, or sovereignties, who have united their several bodies for certain purposes under one head. Allegiance is, therefore, as it regards the nation, rather constitutional than natural, and is due more correctly from the states than from individuals.

But, if the plan is practicable, is it not

If the doctrine be once settled that man has a natural right to withdraw himself from his own country, and that act, to disburthen himself of all the duties which he owes to the country, and to the government by which he was protected, this right must necessarily be of universal application; otherwise it would be a civil, not a natural right. If, then, it be of so extensive a character, it may be exercised in all situations and circumstances, and on all and every occasion. For example, in case of another war with Great Britain, we should probably again fasten our eyes and wishes upon Canada, and, of course, should send an army to conquer it. Upon reaching the frontier, or having just passed it, suppose our troops should, in a body, conclude it would better their circumstances to quit their country and change their allegiance, and, in pursuance of that conclusion, join the British standard? It will be readily acknowledged that, in such a case, the modern doctrine would be somewhat inconvenient in its practical application.

"How is such an application to be avoided? Certainly in no way but by adopting the idea, that the duties which their situation, at the moment, creates, are paramount, for the moment, to the natural right. This cannot be. No civil right, which must be, of course, obtained by contract, is of a higher character than those which are inherent by nature. The right of expatriation, if it exists at all, is a natural right, and cannot be taken away by the laws of society, any more than perpetual allegiance, if it do not exist in the nature of things, can be established by law."

Now a doctrine, which would go the length of exempting a deserter from punishment, even when his desertion may have taken place under the most disastrous and dangerous circumstances, would be at least hazardous, and should not be adopted and put in practice without the utmost care and circumspection.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman at Gibraltar, to his brother in N. York, dated October 20, 1817.

From Leghorn, where I last wrote you, we proceeded to Naples, where I visited most of the antiquities and curiosities in its neighborhood, such as the Temple of Mercury, Prisons of Nero, Tomb of Nero's mother, Nero's Baths, &c. which are in a tolerable state of preservation. I likewise visited the Elysian Fields and River Styx; the latter place, however, I did not cross.

From Naples we proceeded to Palermo, Messina and Syracuse, in Sicily. At the two latter places I was not on shore; but Palermo, the capital, I was most pleased with than any city I have yet seen in Italy. And here I visited the Catacombs at the Monastery of the Capuchins, where several thousand dead bodies are presented to your view, standing in niches, grinning most horribly, with their names and history on a card attached to each. The manner of preparing those bodies for exhibition is as follows: The body is taken soon after it is dead, and dried over a slow fire until the flesh becomes hard, when it is dressed and ornamented as the friends of the deceased think proper, and stood up in its niche, where it remains until the bones moulder entirely away.

On our passage here we boarded a merchant vessel, that informed us that the plague was raging at Algiers, which deterred us from going there. Since our arrival here a report has been received, which is credited, that the Algerines have declared war against the French, after their manner, by capturing one of their merchant vessels.

I yesterday went over to Algeiras to see one of the amusements of the Spaniards, viz: a "bull fight." But in order to give you a correct idea of it, I will attempt to describe it. A large circus is erected, similar to ours in America, in which two horsemen, armed with long spears, pointed with iron, but constructed in such a manner as to prevent its entering very deep in the animal's sides; and two or three men on foot, with large red cloaks, both for their own defence and to irritate the animal. Thus prepared, the bull is let in upon them, when the horsemen commence goading him with their spears, whilst those on foot irritate him with their cloaks; and when he attempts to attack them, they desperately throw it over his eyes and escape out of his way. When they have sufficiently irritated him in this manner, they then begin to torment him by sticking his neck and shoulders full of short barbed darts, the pain of which, together with the sight of the red cloaks, renders him almost frantic; then one of the footmen, armed with a sword, attacks him, and watching his opportunity, when the bull makes at him, leaps on one side, and plunges the sword up to the hilt in his neck; and thus, after repeatedly wounding him, until the animal, faint with loss of blood, enables the swordman to aim a blow nearly perpendicular behind the horns, which instantly dispatches him.—I saw five of these fierce animals tormented in this manner; two of them killed; and but one of the hors sustained any injury, which was owing to the horseman breaking his spear when the bull attacked him.

Letters from Robert M. Harrington, Esq., Consul of the United States at St. Thomas, to the Secretary of State.

St. Thomas, 20th April, 1817.
The increasing number of American ships, whose success in the private-ering trade has infested these seas, has led to the relinquishment of these unprofitable pursuits, whenever an opportunity offers, and almost universally swarm about the coast to claim my protection and aid, so that they daily almost surround my door, renders it again my duty to issue instructions from the Department of State. I have not yet extended to such men any more than a partiality, though many of them are greatly distressed, considering the expenditure of such large money might be considered as being beyond the bounds of my duty, much to be regretted that the Government sustained by so great a number of our seamen should not be sufficient to deter others from embarking in the trade.

St. Thomas, 24th May, 1817.
The number of American vessels, ori-gined to the Spanish Main where they could have been disposed of the murder of Lieut. Scott.

The men under his command by the British. It appears more lives were lost than were mentioned in the account—Lieut. Scott, 44 men, 10 women, and 10 children, were killed, making in all 54.
Nothing for the 4th regiment, under Lieut. Scott, was also taken off by the British.

A regiment of militia under Colonel Hall paraded on the south common last afternoon, when a detachment was made by draft. The object of the draft is not precisely known, but generally supposed to be St. Mary's, or the San Antonio.

EXPLANATION.
Robertson, of Louisiana, a member of the House of Representatives of the United States, has introduced a resolution that house, the object of which is to induce Congress to declare that the people of this country have a right to expatriate themselves. The one of perpetual allegiance has always appeared to trouble our warmest patriots, for what particular reason they may best be able to say. We notwithstanding, that Mr. Robertson will find some difficulty before he can move his motion into complete effect.
The first place, we would enquire, authority have Congress thus to release the inhabitants of this country, even though that there is nothing in the idea of perpetual allegiance? If Congress can all, they can only release men from obligations they are under to the national government. They have no power over the ties which bind men to the government; and there is the spot where, that we should naturally find natural allegiance. From regular form and nature of our national government, it may be questioned whether there is, strictly speaking, anything as natural allegiance towards government, it being formed, essentially, of a confederation of separate and equal states, or sovereignties, who have each their several bodies for certain purposes under one head. Allegiance is therefore, as it regards the nation, rather a political than a natural, and is due correctly from the states than from individuals.

Copy of a letter received by a gentleman in this city from his friend in the state of Delaware.

DEAR SIR—On the 23d of last month, I was represented to me by Thos. Tharp that a negro child had been missing on the preceding evening, from the residence of his father in Kent county, Delaware, and was supposed to have been kidnapped: I immediately proceeded to the place about ten miles distance where the child was said to be missing: On my arrival I found the parents of the child with some of their neighbors assembled in the woods about half a mile from their dwelling, whose cries and screams, occasioned by the loss of the child, had alarmed the neighborhood and brought the inhabitants together from the distance of several miles. Language cannot depict my feelings when I arrived at the spot, and saw the tears fast rolling down their sable cheeks, while the father frequently threw himself with violence on the ground beating his breast and exclaiming, "O my child, my son! could I only have followed you to the grave! would to God that my child had only died, or had never been born! but now he is stolen, and will be carried to Georgia where I shall never see him more."

On examination, I learned that the child had been sent home from the field where he had been with his father, during the day of the 23d, and that about sundown he had been heard to scream loudly in the woods through which his path led. This was the only information I could then obtain. Soon after I was informed by a black man that two men of suspicious character had been seen on the same day scouting through the aforesaid woods. I therefore commenced a diligent search with full determination to find the child. On the night of the 24th I reconnoitered North West fork bridge, the place of general rendezvous for those merciless beings who deal in the flesh of their fellow men. On the 25th we had major Maddox arrested on suspicion, and learned from him that the child had been stolen and taken by a certain Jeremiah Nicols, and was concealed in the neighborhood of Punch Hall, Caroline county, Md. A company of gentlemen of the first respectability, volunteered their services, and we proceeded to the great swamp near the line of Delaware, and after searching the swamp found where some person had kindled a fire, and apparently stayed some days; here I have since learned, the child was kept. From thence we proceeded to Punch Hall where we found several individuals, who had the character of being concerned in the nauseous practice of kidnapping. On inquiry they denied in the most positive manner, having any knowledge of the boy. We proposed making search, which was refused by the occupant of the house;
we then commenced searching the outhouses, and after considerable time, found the child in the middle of a large stock of fodder that had been placed over the child with a large square hollow in the middle—the wretch who had placed him there, standing by. While we were at the place a southern trader arrived, to whom I learned the child had been sold.

Thus through the aid of a kind Providence we were enabled to restore the disconsolate father and mother, their lost infant, who had been torn from their fostering care, and concealed first in a swamp, and then in a fodder stock for several days upwards of twenty miles from the place of his residence. Nothing could exceed the joy evinced by his parents on his restoration, while they embraced him with an ardour of affection only to be imagined by a parent; their eyes fixed on their benefactors poured forth floods of tears.

How strongly does the foregoing plead for energetic measures against the cruel practice of kidnapping. Parents do you love your children? Do their little playful acts amuse and enliven your fireside, when they clamber on your knees and excite warm feelings of affection? Oh then, remember the poor African, who can feel keenly as you; is as susceptible of pain and pleasure, but who is friendless and unprotected—remember the sufferings to which he is exposed by the avarice of man, and stretch forth a friendly arm to aid him. His blessing will rest upon you, his prayers will rise a sweet incense before the Great Supreme on your behalf, and call down his favor upon you: you will reap in this world an hundred fold, and in that to come life everlasting.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman at Gibraltar, to his brother in N. York, dated October 20, 1817.

From Leghorn, where I last wrote you, we proceeded to Naples, where I visited most of the antiquities and curiosities in its neighborhood, such as the Temple of Mercury, Prisons of Nero, Tomb of Nero's mother, Nero's Baths, &c. which are in a tolerable state of preservation.— I likewise visited the Elysian Fields and River Styx; the latter place, however, I did not cross.

From Naples we proceeded to Palermo, Messina and Syracuse, in Sicily. At the two latter places I was not on shore; but Palermo, the capital, I was more pleased with than any city I have yet seen in Italy. And here I visited the Catacombs at the Monastery of the Capuchins, where several thousand dead bodies are presented to your view, standing in niches, grinning most horribly, with their names and history on a card attached to each. The manner of preparing those bodies for exhibition is as follows:
The body is taken soon after it is dead,
and dried over a slow fire until the flesh becomes hard, when it is dressed and ornamented as the friends of the deceased think proper, and stood up in its niche, where it remains until the bones moulder entirely away.

On our passage here we boarded a merchant vessel, that informed us that the plague was raging at Algiers, which deterred us from going there. Since our arrival here a report has been received, which is credited, that the Algerines have declared war against the French, after their manner, by capturing one of their merchant vessels.

I yesterday went over to Algiers to see one of the amusements of the Spaniards, viz: a "bull fight." But in order to give you a correct idea of it, I will attempt to describe it. A large circus is erected, similar to ours in America, in which two horsemen, armed with long spears, pointed with iron, but constructed in such a manner as to prevent its entering very deep in the animal's sides;
and two or three men on foot, with large red cloaks, both for their own defence and to irritate the animal. Thus prepared, the bull is let in upon them, when the horsemen commence goading him with their spears, whilst those on foot irritate him with their cloaks; and when he attempts to attack them, they dexterously throw it over his eyes and escape out of his way. When they have sufficiently irritated him in this manner, they then begin to torment him by sticking his neck and shoulders full of short barbed darts, the pain of which, together with the sight of the red cloaks, renders him almost frantic; then one of the footmen, armed with a sword, attacks him, and watching his opportunity, when the bull makes at him, leaps on one side, and plunges the sword up to the hilt in his neck; and thus, after repeatedly wounding him, until the animal, faint with loss of blood, enables the swordsman to aim a blow nearly perpendicular behind the horns, which instantly dispatches him.— I saw five of these fierce animals tormented in this manner; two of them killed; and but one of the horse sustained any injury, which was owing to the horseman breaking his spear when the bull attacked him.

my feelings when I arrived at the spot,
and saw the tears fast rolling down their
sable cheeks, while the father frequently
threw himself with violence on the ground
beating his breast and exclaiming, "O my child, my son! could I only have
followed you to the grave! would to God
that my child had only died, or had never been born! but now he is stolen, and
never see him more."

On examination, I learned that the
child had been sent home from the field
where he had been with his father, during the day of the 23d, and that about
sundown he had been heard to scream
path led. This was the only information
I could then obtain. Soon after I was informed by a black man that two men
of suspicious character had been seen on the same day scouting through the aforesaid woods. I therefore commenced a diligent search with full determination to find the child. On the night of the 24th
I reconnoitered North West fork bridge,
the place of general rendezvous for those
their fellow men. On the 25th we had major Maddox arrested on suspicion, and
learned from him that the child had been stolen and taken by a certain Jeremiah Nicols, and was concealed in the neighborhood of Punch Hall, Caroline county, Md. A company of gentlemen of the first respectability, volunteered their services, and we proceeded to the great swamp near the line of Delaware, and
after searching the swamp found where
some person had kindled a fire, and apparently stayed some days; here I have since learned, the child was kept. From thence we proceeded to Punch Hall where
we found several individuals, who had
the character of being concerned in the nauseous practice of kidnapping. On inquiry they denied in the most positive
manner, having any knowledge of the
boy. We proposed making search, which was refused by the occupant of the house;
we then commenced searching the out-
houses, and after considerable time,
found the child in the middle of a large stock of fodder that had been placed over
the child with a large square hollow in
the middle—the wretch who had placed
at the place a southern trader arrived,
to whom I learned the child had been sold.

Thus through the aid of a kind Providence we were enabled to restore the dis-
fostering care, and concealed first in a swamp, and then in a fodder stock for several days upwards of twenty miles from
the place of his residence. Nothing could exceed the joy evinced by his parents on
his restoration, while they embraced him
with an ardour of affection only to be imagined by a parent; their eyes fixed
on their benefactors poured forth floods
of tears.

How strongly does the foregoing plead
for energetic measures against the cruel
practice of kidnapping. Parents do you love your children? Do their little playful acts amuse and enliven your fireside,
when they clamber on your knees and excite warm feelings of affection? Oh then,
remember the poor African, who can
feel keenly as you; is as susceptible of
pain and pleasure, but who is friendless
and unprotected—remember the sufferings to which he is exposed by the avarice
of man, and stretch forth a friendly
arm to aid him. His blessing will rest
upon you, his prayers will rise a sweet
incense before the Great Supreme on
your behalf, and call down his favor upon
you: you will reap in this world an hundred fold, and in that to come life everlasting.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman at Gibraltar, to his brother in N. York, dated October 20, 1817.

From Leghorn, where I last wrote you,
we proceeded to Naples, where I visited
most of the antiquities and curiosities in
its neighborhood, such as the Temple of Mercury, Prisons of Nero, Tomb of Ne-
are in a tolerable state of preservation.— I likewise visited the Elysian Fields and River Styx; the latter place, however, I did not cross.

From Naples we proceeded to Palermo, Messina and Syracuse, in Sicily. At
the two latter places I was not on shore;
but Palermo, the capital, I was more
pleased with than any city I have yet
seen in Italy. And here I visited the Catacombs at the Monastery of the Capu-
chins, where several thousand dead bodies are presented to your view, standing
their names and history on a card attached to each. The manner of preparing
those bodies for exhibition is as follows:
The body is taken soon after it is dead,
and dried over a slow fire until the flesh
becomes hard, when it is dressed and ornamented as the friends of the deceased
think proper, and stood up in its niche,
where it remains until the bones moulder
entirely away.

On our passage here we boarded a merchant vessel, that informed us that
the plague was raging at Algiers, which deterred us from going there. Since our arrival here a report has been received,
which is credited, that the Algerines have
declared war against the French, after
their manner, by capturing one of their merchant vessels.

I yesterday went over to Algiers to see one of the amusements of the Spaniards, viz: a "bull fight." But in or-
attempt to describe it. A large circus is erected, similar to ours in America, in which two horsemen, armed with long spears, pointed with iron, but constructed in such a manner as to prevent its entering very deep in the animal's sides;
and two or three men on foot, with large
and to irritate the animal. Thus prepared, the bull is let in upon them, when
the horsemen commence goading him
with their spears, whilst those on foot ir-
attempts to attack them, they dexter-
ously throw it over his eyes and escape
out of his way. When they have sufficiently irritated him in this manner, they then begin to torment him by sticking his
neck and shoulders full of short barbed
darts, the pain of which, together with
the sight of the red cloaks, renders him
almost frantic; then one of the footmen,
armed with a sword, attacks him, and
makes at him, leaps on one side, and
plunges the sword up to the hilt in his
neck; and thus, after repeatedly wounding him, until the animal, faint with loss
of blood, enables the swordsman to aim a blow nearly perpendicular behind the horns, which instantly dispatches him.—
I saw five of these fierce animals tormented
in this manner; two of them killed;
and but one of the horse sustained any
injury, which was owing to the horseman
breaking his spear when the bull attacked him.

James Kennedy & Son,

BOOKSELLERS.

RESPECTFULLY inform the public that they have just received from

Lee's Medicine Store,

No. 46, Maiden lane, New-York, a fresh supply of the following valuable MEDICINES:

Hamilton's Worm-destroying Lozenges.

Which have within sixteen years past cured an immense number of persons of both sexes of every age and in every situation, of various dangerous complaints arising from WORMS, and from obstructions or foulness in the stomach and bowels.

This medicine bears no analogy whatever to others of similar titles so commonly complained of as operating with violence; on the contrary a particular excellence of this remedy is its being suited to every age and constitution. It contains nothing but what is perfectly innocent & is so mild in its operation that it cannot injure the most delicate pregnant lady or the tenderest infant of a week old should no worms exist in the body; but will without pain or griping cleanse the stomach and bowels of whatever is foul or offensive, and thereby prevent the production of worms and many fatal disorders. The lozenges are particularly efficacious in carrying off all gross humours and eruptions, feverish and bilious complaints, and are the safest and mildest purgative that can be used on any occasion.

Description of Worms, and the symptoms by which they are known.

Worms which infest the human body are chiefly of four kinds viz.—The Tere or large round worm; the Ascari or small maw-worm; the Cucurbitine or short flat white worm; and lastly, the Taenia or tape-worm, so called from its resemblance to tape. This is often many yards long and is full of joints. It is most hurtful and most difficult to remove.

Among the symptoms attending worms are—disagreeable breath, especially in the morning; bad and corrupted gums; itching in the nose, and about the seat; convulsions, epileptic fits, and sometimes privation of speech; starting and grinding of the teeth in sleep; irregular appetite. Sometimes loathing food and some times voracious; purging with slimy and fetid stools; vomiting; large and hard belly; pains and sickness at the stomach; pains in the head and thighs and lowness of spirits; slow fever with small and irregular pulse; a dry cough; excessive thirst; sometimes pale and unhealthy countenance and sometimes the face bloated and flushed.

Persons afflicted with any of the above symptoms should have immediate recourse to Hamilton's Worm Destroying Lozenges, which have been constantly attended with success in all complaints similar to those above described.

A dose of this medicine given occasionally during the warm season, will effectually prevent "the vomiting and purging of children"—a dreadful disorder, which annually destroys thousands of the infant part of our citizens. It is likewise the mildest and most certain remedy known, and has restored to health and strength a great number when in an advanced stage of this fatal complaint. Particular and plain instructions are given for every part of the necessary treatment in such cases.

Children generally take this medicine with eagerness; having a pleasing appearance, and an agreeable taste.

The Restorative Powder for the Teeth and Gums.

For the prevention and cure of BILIOUS AND MALIGNANT FEVERS is recommended.

HAIN'S ANTI-BILIOUS PILLS. THIS Medicine has been attended with a degree of success highly grateful to the inventor's feelings in several parts of the West Indies and in the Southern and Middle States, &c.

The testimony of a number of persons can be adduced, who have reason to believe that a timely use of this salutary remedy has, under Providence, preserved their lives when in the most alarming circumstances.

Facts of this conclusive nature speak more in favour of a medicine than columns of pompous eulogy founded on mere assertion.

It is not indeed presumptuously proposed as an infallible cure, but the inventor has every possible reason that can result from extensive experience for believing that a dose of these Pills taken once in every two weeks during the prevalence of our bilious fevers, will prove an infallible preventive; and further, that in the earlier stages of those diseases their use will very generally succeed in restoring health, and frequently in cases esteemed desperate and beyond the power of common remedies.

The operation of these pills is perfectly mild, so as to be used with safety by persons in every situation and of every age. They are excellently adapted to carry off superfluous bile and prevent its morbid secretions—to restore and amend the appetite—to produce a free perspiration and thereby prevent colds which are often of fatal consequences. A dose never fails to remove a cold if taken on its first appearance: they are celebrated for removing habitual costiveness—sickness at the stomach and severe head-ache—and ought to be taken by all persons on a change of climate.

They have been found remarkably efficacious in preventing and curing disorders attendant on long voyages, and should be procured and carefully preserved for use by every seaman.

Hamilton's Elixir.

A sovereign remedy for colds, obstinate coughs, asthma, sore throats, catarrhs, and approaching consumptions. To parents who have children afflicted with the HOOPING COUGH, this discovery is of the first magnitude, as it affords immediate relief, checks the progress, and in a short time entirely removes the most cruel disorders to which children are liable. The Elixir is perfectly agreeable, and the dose so small that no difficulty arises in taking it.

Hamilton's Grand Restorative.

Is recommended as an invaluable medicine for the speedy relief and permanent cure of Nervous Disorders Violent cramps in Consumptions the stomach and Lowness of spirits back Loss of appetite Indigestion Impurity of blood Melancholy Hysterical affection Gout in the stomach Inward weaknesses Pains in the limbs and debility Relaxations, etc.

Hamilton's Essence and Extract of Mustard.

A safe and effectual remedy for acute and chronic rheumatism, gout, rheumatic gout, palsy, lamago, numbness, white swellings, chilblains, sprains, bruises, pain in the face and neck, etc. etc.

Lee's Ointment for the Itch.

Warranted an infallible remedy at one application, may be used with perfect safety by pregnant women, or on infants a week old, not containing a particle of mercury or any dangerous ingredient whatever, and not accompanied with that tormenting smart which attends the application of other remedies.

Hahn's true & genuine German Corn Plaster.

An infallible remedy for corns, speedily removing them root and branch, without giving any pain.

The Genuine Persian Lotion.

So celebrated among the fashionable throughout Europe, is an invaluable cosmetic, perfectly innocent and safe, free from corrosive and repellent minerals, the basis of other lotions, and of unparalleled efficacy in removing blemishes of the face and skin, freckles, pimples, inflammatory redness, scurfs, tetter, ring-worms, sunburns, prickly heat, &c.

Hahn's genuine Eye Water.

A sovereign remedy for all diseases of the eyes, whether the effect of nature weakness or of accident.

Tooth Ache Drops.

The only remedy yet discovered which gives immediate and lasting relief in the most severe instances.

Lee's Infallible Ague and Fever Drops

For the cure of agues, remittent and intermittent fevers.

At the place of sale pamphlets may be had gratis, describing cures performed by the above medicines; the number, importance and respectability of which, fully justify every article of this advertisement.
